Audrey Catalano is a senior from Massachusetts studying Linguistics, Theatre, and French. She is thrilled to join the New Orleans Abortion Fund and help launch the Outloud program, where she will be using storytelling as a means of reproductive justice advocacy. Audrey's research interests outside of reproductive health and justice include dialectology of Black and African American women, language conservation/revitalization, and global education. At Tulane, she is a writer and actor with Cat Mafia Comedy, founder/co-president of the Women's Comedy Collective, and member of the WYSE (Women and Youth Supporting Each Other) mentorship program.
